Fundraising Update

After some recalculations, the expected cost for our two new holes has increased to around $80,000. But the good news is that with all of the fundraising we have done this year, we have raised over $67,000 including grants. We still have a long way to go before we reach our target of $80,000, but we are getting there. Work will begin on the two new holes in January 2012.

Thank you for your support of all of the fundraising initiatives over the last 12 months. We could not have done it without you. Watch out for the new fundraising events in 2012!
